Language Development

This course provides an overview of patterns in first and second language development, and theoretical issues arising from the field. The course introduces the central questions and main theories of first and second language development; covers selected aspects of the development of phonology, morphology, syntax, semantics, and pragmatics; and addresses relations between cognitive neuroscience and language development.

Time:
see KIS: Sozialwissenschaften/Psycholinguistik und Sprachentwicklung; Prof. Dr. Shanley Allen